The number 7 is considered very lucky!

There are 7 pillars of wisdom, 7 rainbow colors, and 7 main Chakras. In Buddhism, 7 is the number of attaining the Center, in Chinese lore there are 7 fairies, and the Bible mentions 7 circuits of Jericho. The Egyptians knew 7 daughters of Ra and the Green Pan had 7 pipes. The Pythagoreans called it the perfect number, made up of 3 and 4, the triangle and the square, the perfect figures. The Arabians had 7 holy temples. It is considered the perfect number and the number of completion, and is the winning number in gambling and many games of chance.

BAD LUCK!

The number 13 is considered very unlucky!

At the Last Supper, the 13th guest betrayed Jesus, and in Norse lore, a banquet of 12 deities was interrupted by an evil god who was the 13th guest. Apollo 13 was the only NASA mission that was unsuccessful in attempts to land on the moon. Traditionally, 13 is the number of steps leading up to a gallows. In numerology, 12 is considered the number of completeness and 13 interrupts that balance. Witches were claimed to gather in groups of 12 and the devil would appear as the 13th attendee. The fear of the number 13 is called Triskaidekaphobia.
